Jewish, Muslim, Christian peace mission crosses Sahara, gets turned away by Libyans

Mar. 22, 2006

After a grueling two-week trek across the Sahara Desert, a group of Jews, Muslims and Christians on a peace mission from Jerusalem to Tripoli were refused entrance into Libya on Wednesday. The nine-member team, sponsored by the Berlin-based nonprofit group Breaking the Ice, spent the night in no-man's land between Egypt and Libya, waiting for a Libyan response. The head of Libya's border authority turned them away early Wednesday, telling them they would be arrested if they did not leave immediately.
